

I am troubled that Sinclair Broadcasting intends to use the public airwaves to influence the 2004 elections by airing "Stolen Honor" without at least providing equal time to opposing views.

They have every right to their political opinions yet they have a special responsibility because they depend on the public's airwaves.

I urge the FCC to defend fairness and the public interest in this matter. Sinclair can easily balance its airing of "Stolen Honor" by televising programs that fairly promote opposing views.
